Sugar Addiction:

Defeating the Greatest Dietary Crisis of all Time

By Julia Ross, MA

Sugar-linked degenerative disease now kills 35 million people a year worldwide. In addition to the new research exposing its toxicity, sugar is now known to be four times more addictive than cocaine because of its potent impact on the brain's appetite chemistry.

This presentation will focus on the nutritional strategies that can stop sugar cravings in 24 hours in over 80% of overeaters of all ages.

Location:

Market of Choice
67 West 29th, Eugene
Upstairs in the Community Room

Day & Time:

February 22, 2013
